A few corrections you might want to consider:

- The term is 5 1/2 years so that it will align with the state races in 2022.

- A runoff would be in May, not June.

- I was never involved in design of GPS. I was an acquisition logistics manager, A Deputy Program Manager, and an acquisition or program manager, not an engineer. That makes a big difference since someone involved in design of GPS equipment wouldn't necessarily have skills related to City Council, but someone managing logistics and involved in developing acquisition plans for multi-billion dollar programs would obviously have skills directly related to City Council, and especially in overseeing the Port of LA. The way it is written is a major error which hides an important fact from the voters.

- Did anyone at the paper attend or watch the video of the Candidate Forum that we had on Feb 16th in Wilmington? Did anyone re-read your own articles and those of Random Lengths over the past 5 1/2 years? There are huge issues that were just glossed over in the article, and facts omitted in a way that seems purposeful to hide reality from the voters. I can understand an analysis that concludes in one candidate's favor or another, but the article leaves out major facts such as Joe voting against tighter emissions, and allowing China Shipping to pollute the port for 2 years idling it's engines illegally -- these are facts, yet you let Joe's statement stand that he claims he "is doing everything

(he) can to reduce emissions". Space X is illegally on protected California Coastal land-- that's more than just my opinion, that's a fact. Ordinance 56.11 which is what the lawsuits you refer to was found unconstitutional by the district court -- that's not the same as the "target of lawsuits" which leaves it ambiguous as to whether any of the lawsuits were successful. You also don't mention that Seabreeze apartments was disapproved by the Planning Dept before Joe pushed it through. You also gloss over the money laundering as if it is some vague assertion by the LA Times when in fact they presented overwhelming evidence of it. You also don't address the promises that were made in major press conferences promising $100 million for the homeless and $1.5 billion for the Port which were never even close to being fulfilled.
